The WALKO Workbench System

The Walko System is the finest and most adaptable bench system in the world today. Walko benches are light enough to be used in the field, but strong enough to handle the most demanding shop tasks. From processing large sheet goods to cutting gutter or water pipe, the Walko System will change how you work and best yet, you will work easier and more comfortably. The Walko is a multifunctional bench with an adjustable working surface consisting of two tables, or tops, which hang from and lock into position on the sides of the "hinged A-frame". In the top most position, the tables combine to create a large flat work surface which, with the aid of clamps, can hold a variety of items in place while being worked on. It is at this point the Walko System differs from normal work stations. The work tables hanging from the frame can be lowered, have their height staggered, tilted and even placed on the same side enabling you to adjust to the job at hand. The Walko can also be unfolded "flat" and placed against a wall or on the floor. In this flat position, the Walko can be used to process sheet goods or when placed against a wall, hang tables from it for a workbench if space is an issue. You're never in any danger of cutting the frame because of the replaceable, sacrificial spacers built into the bench which provide you with a 1"+ space between the frame and your work. Walko accessories include extra work tables and table struts (needed to support the work table or if you want to make your own tables); work struts (holders), clamps, casters, sacrificial spacers and wall mounts. All intended to make this system the most complete and adaptable workbench you can own.
